

SUMMARY OF NEW CONCLUSIONS OF PHD THESIS

1. Title: The movement of the concept of the working class is viewed from the standpoint of dialectical materialist philosophy

2. Speciality: Philosophy

3. Classification: 92 29 001

4. Name of PhD Student: Tran Van Giang

5. Advisor(s): Associate Professor, Ph.D Nguyen Anh Tuan

6. Institutional: Academy of Journalism and Communication

7. New conclusions:

- Firstly, the concept of working class moves in a way from abstract to concrete. Hired labor, the most popular and abstract attribute, is the distinct nature of the working class, at the same time, is dialectical abstraction because it is the unity of three aspects: is deprived of the materials of production, organized and managed in production, exploited of the surplus value. Hired labor has a contradiction with its other, that of human relations. This contradiction appeared to be the conflict between the working class and the bourgeoisie. The contradictory nature of hired labor dictates the historic mission and all subsequent movements of the working class. From the abstract nature, through movement and development, the working class appeared into a whole set of attributes and properties. The concept of working class becomes concrete.

- Secondly, the concept of working class has extension that is increasingly expanded, due to the appearance of new forms of workers; has a more and more complete content, because when a new worker object is born, it appears with new attributes; has deeper and deeper catalepsy, due to its higher and higher level of generality because it unifies all new content, which has just emerged.

- Thirdly, in the interaction between concepts, due to the development of the concept of the working class, the system of concepts in scientific socialism is constantly changing from abstract to concrete, in which there is the addition of new concepts. The nature of the working class is reflected in the concept defines the nature, nature and content of the communist party, proletarian revolution, proletarian state, class coalition,...

Advisor(s)

PhD Student

Associate Professor, Ph.D Nguyen Anh Tuan

Tran Van Giang

